SUSPECT HOME IN CARBON MURDER CASE

CARBON, Mo., June 25.—William Boulier telephoned the police here today that his son, Allen, wanted on a warrant charging him with the murder of Emma Jensen, is at home. "He came in this morning," the father said, "I will keep him until you come."

Chief of Police Noble at once started for the Boulier home, armed with two warrants. One charges Allen Boulier with the murder of Emma Jensen. The other charges manslaughter. In spite of the fact that he has secured warrants for the arrest of Boulier, Chief Noble is anxious to question an attack of the news which visited here last week. This young man, it is said, is at the home of a neighbor of the Bouliers.

Emma Jensen, the slain girl, was the eighteen-year-old daughter of Jacob Jensen. He is a prosperous farmer on the New Sweden road. The body was found in a clump of bushes of the road—three bullets in her head.

BOULIER INFATIGATED

Young Boulier, it is charged, was infatuated with her. He disappeared through the girl's body was discovered, and the police believed he had struck through the woods for the Canada line, as he is an expert woodsman.

County Attorney Herman Archibald came from New Brunswick to the charge of the investigation. The autopsy showed three bullets in her head, though only two were supposed to have been fired.

Mrs. Frank Brown, whose husband discovered the dead body of the Jensen girl, told the police she heard three shots about 9:30 the night before the body was found. Others corroborated this report.

The mysterious death of Stella Devere, a girl of twenty who had inaugurated a double death inquiry here, was cleared up when Coroner Floyd Smith found she had died from natural causes and dismissed the jury.

Y., June 25.—Colonel Roosevelt, who returned last night from Europe, where he had gone to attend the wedding of his son, Kermit, permitted himself to put today, but immediately got to work on his correspondence and other matters which had accumulated in his absence. "My career as a geographer has ended," he declared, "for the next four months I suppose I shall be a politician."

HOUSE FOR SALE STIRS UP SOME PILE

John Colucci has stirred up some pile like a cup of coffee by advertising "for sale or to let to colored people only" his house at No. 123 Hudson street, Somerville.

This, the neighbors say, is Colucci's spite-motive to get revenge for their opposition to a recent petition he presented to the Aldermen asking a permit for a garage beneath his residence.

There are no exceptions—these neighbors—that they plan to ask an attorney if a man has a right to discriminate in advertising his house for sale or to let. Altogether, there is promise of a fair little fight.

Colucci's petition for a garage was presented a few weeks ago. Owners and residents on the street forthwith signed a petition objecting to granting the permit. They contended that such a garage would impair the appearance and valuation of the street. There was a public hearing, several signs of the petition speaking at that hearing. Colucci spoke, but the audience voted against him.

Shortly after, the advertisement of the house for let "to colored people only" appeared.

Mr. Alderman Oscar H. Belding is a leader in the fight against Colucci. He owns property on the street, and says there is a matter forbidding discrimination in connection with the sale of real estate. He may seek an injunction against Colucci to prevent the sale of colored people.

"DIAMOND CHIP" ROBINSON GOES TO AID OF HIS DYING WIFE

he is my boy and I love him as only mother said, "I never do!"

"I can't tell you what he is charged with," he did them, not because he was forced to, but because he has traveled in company that led him into trouble, and, after he got married, he was not so relieved. "I was seized," he said, "and I had as despoiled. If his partner tells a story of Lawrence's having shot a man, then I am in a bad way. I believe in Grand Jury, Mich., believe in Grand Jury, I believe, knowing of the partner and his record as a bad man, he surely must have been a bad man."

"When do you intend to go to Boston?" she was asked.

"I don't know, for I cannot afford to go to-day. I have a lawyer for him, and I don't know what else I could do for him. So I think I will stay here for the present and he will go to Boston. I don't know if she is living. The poor girl has had so much to put up with in Lawrence's case, and I don't want to help her so much as I can."

"Did you have any liking that flaps robbery?" the mother was asked.

"No, none whatever, nor did his wife," he said.

"Nor did he, if he got any plunder, away any of it."

"Do you mean that your father went willingly into these escapades?"

"Well, I am somewhat of a fatalist," he said, "and I believe in them it was because he was the man."

The mother broke down at this point, and wept for a moment.

"I was alone in the world and had to do as I could," she said.

"You were a victim of the great crime wave, in all probability, the waste of causing her to lose her home."

"Did your sons have any accomplices?"

"The country," Mrs. Robinson was told.

"No indeed. When they were not kept in the city, they were with their parents in this city, where she at the present time lives."

"But you say that your father, wherever of his wrongdoings, although he was not a criminal, was arrested and sentenced for some crime?"

"Yes," he said, "for a crime of the kind, and for which he served at least a year."

"What disposition will be made of the money obtained from the robbery?"

"Robinson and his pal Luddy is in a question frequently asked."

"Will the property taken from the prisoners be found to be theirs?"

When the court officers accompany the prison vans to the jail, they invariably inquire as to how Robinson is getting along. The jail attaches give them the information and the prisoners pass it to their friends, who, in turn, carry it outside the jail.

ELEVEN FAST RACES ON CARD IN DORCHESTER

Twenty-six fast pacers and trotters in eleven races will be the card of events at the Franklin Field Speedway of the Dorchester Driving Club on Saturday afternoon. The horses will be given a tryout for the interclub meet with the Old Colony Club meet on July 4.

In the fast pacing event will be seen Victor Beach, with William W.

Young up, against Charley King, with A. T. Wheelock, the youngest driver in the club, at the reins. It was also expected that Building Commissioner P. O'Hearn, the first vice-president of the organization, will appear on the track with a new speed, the fastest that has ever traveled the half-mile circuit in New England. The entries:

CLASS A, FANT PATCH—Sister Patch, b. d. (William H. Young); Charley King, b. d. (A. T. Wheelock).

CLASS B, RACE—Knorr's Galatine Baby, b. g. (T. J. Clement); Mona Maid, ch. m. (A. S. Gubben).

50 AND 55 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, JUNE 25, 1914.

The Supreme Court of the United States Now Upholds Hearst Pipe Line Bill of 1905

In deciding that pipe line companies are common carriers, obligated to carry the oil offered by all shippers at uniform rates, and subject to the regulation of the Interstate Commerce Commission like any railroad, the Supreme Court of the United States has dealt the Standard Oil Company the most crushing blow it has ever sustained.

That colossal monopoly, the most prodigious and powerful aggregation of capital this world has ever known, was built up on railroad favors and pipe lines. In its earlier days, by means of corrupt contracts with traffic managers, the Standard Oil Company was not only granted cheaper rates than its rivals, but a part of the freight charges paid by its competitors was actually withheld from the railroad treasuries and paid over to it. On such favors it naturally thrived and waxed fat, driving all competitors from its field.

In time the corrupt alliance with the railroads was broken by legislative action, both State and national. But the monster monopoly, securing control of the pipe lines by which the oil could most cheaply be brought to tide-water, again fortified itself against competition. Independent producers and refiners protested in vain. Only the oil of the Standard Company could find its way through those pipes.

In 1905 Mr. William Randolph Hearst, being a member of the Fifty-eighth Congress, introduced in that body a bill declaring persons or corporations operating pipe lines common carriers, subject to the public obligations and duties of such carriers, and amenable, like the railroads, to the regulatory supervision of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

IN BRIEF, MR. HEARST'S BILL IN 1905 SOUGHT TO WRITE INTO THE STATUTES THAT WHICH THE SUPREME COURT NINE YEARS LATER DECLARES TO BE THE LAW.

Of course the bill was smothered in committee. The leaders of the Republican party, men like Foraker and Penrose, who later were shown to be in the actual pay of the Standard Oil Company, rallied against it, and Congress, under their control, denied it even a vote on the floor. The Democrats, then as now, professing ardent hostility to trusts and monopolies of every kind, could not recognize in this bill the most direct attack ever made on the Standard Oil "Octopus" they were so fond of denouncing, and gave it but scant support. It died of bi-partisan neglect.

But its purpose was clear enough to the independent producers of oil, and to the few refiners still able to operate in competition with Standard Oil. They took up the idea and agitated it with the purpose of getting, through a legal decision, what Congress had refused them. After nine years of ceaseless endeavor, of wearisome and expensive litigation, of rehearings, reversals, appeals and all the rest of the distasteful processes of the law, they have at last got from the Supreme Court a final decision that the Hearst bill of February 20, 1905, enunciated the plain law.

Had the bill then been passed, Standard Oil would have been checked in mid-career by a power it could not defy. Its period of greatest accumulation of capital—capital used to finance new monopolies—would have been effectively interrupted. The force of resolving it into its constituent parts with the result that the market value of its constituent stocks rose to the highest figure in its history would not have been played. The great monopoly would have been hit hard, perhaps fatally.

Though late, the Supreme Court decision will be of incalculable value still. But the thought of those nine years, succeeding Mr. Hearst's Congressional endeavor, during which the monopoly was permitted to plunder, at will, should emphasize the folly of sending trust attorneys and trust dummies to Congress to defeat, or at least delay, all endeavors to protect the people against oppression and extortion of the Standard Oil sort.

One Dear Little Fact Outweighs Tons of Theory

And "Made in Germany" Doesn't Spell "Prosperity for America"

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

We are having our "tariff reform," dearly beloved.

How do you LIKE it?

You do find that we can buy things any cheaper than you used to?

No, you don't, and you won't.

When tariff reform takes ninety cents off of the cost of the cloth in a fifteen-dollar suit of clothes, the maker of the clothes doesn't take fifteen cents off of the price.

But the buyer of the cloth gets it in England, or elsewhere, instead of buying it in America, made by American workmen.

If you question Mr. Wilson and other gentlemen to whom we owe our psychological prosperity, you will be told that the tariff is a blessing, and that it does not hurt workmen.

When you NEXT talk to Mr. Wilson, offer him a FACT. There is one man in this country—others like him—who conducts a big business and gives away so-called souvenirs, usually pocket knives, at country fairs.

This one individual spends for these souvenirs two hundred and fifty thousand dollars a year. Hitherto he has bought them in the United States—made by UNITED STATES LABOR. Now he buys them in Germany.

He is bound, of course, to look after the interests of his company. And when the government of the United States makes it worth while for his company to buy of GERMAN workmen instead of workmen in AMERICA, the company does that.

He said to this writer the other day, "I don't pretend to discuss with able theorists, but I know that I, as one business man, am spending each year ONE MILLION DOLLARS MORE ABROAD than I was before they changed the tariff."

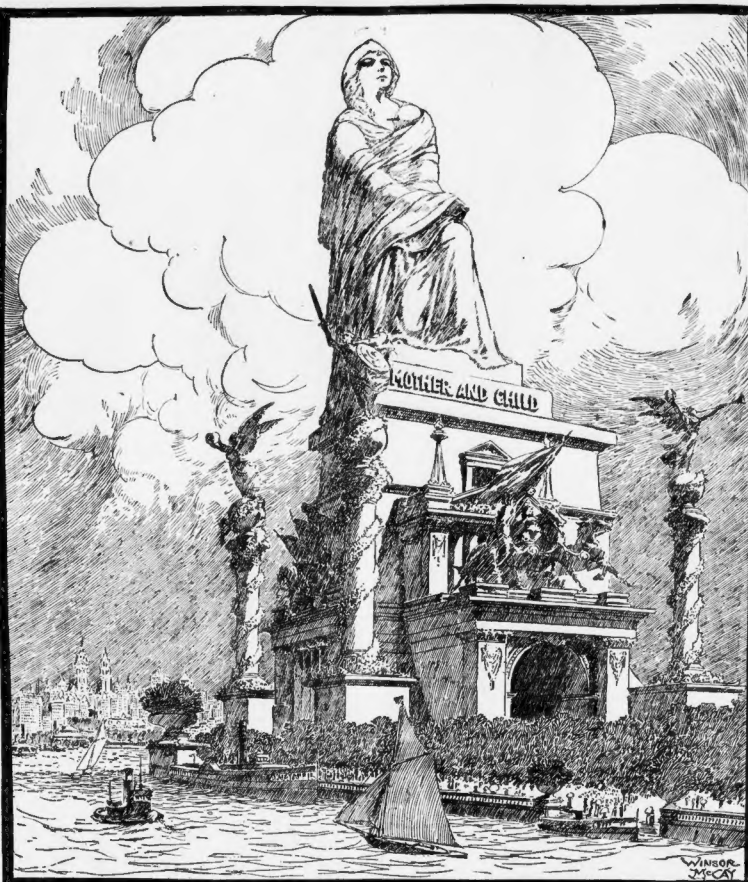

It doesn't take very deep intelligence, gentle readers, to realize that if ONE man is giving to workmen in Europe each year a million dollars for wages and material that he spent here last year, WORKMEN IN AMERICA ARE GETTING LESS THAN THEY USED TO.

And if you multiply that million by a thousand it will be a reasonable estimate of a small part of what the tariff will cost the American workman. So be not surprised that prosperity has something the matter with its psychology.

P. S.—The name of the gentleman who brings two hundred and fifty thousand dollars' worth of souvenirs from Germany and who spends now for foreign labor one million annually that he spent previously for American labor will be gladly supplied to President Wilson, if he will write a note asking for it.

THE HOPE OF THE NATION

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

It is the American mother, with her baby in her arms, who moulds the future of this nation. If the cry of "Better Babies, Better Mothers," does nothing else than bring this fact to the minds of citizens, it will be well worth while. Well might the American people build a statue of gigantic size in honor of the American mother, whose tender care and deathless love and hope have made Americans the greatest race on this earth.

More Truth Than Poetry

But Still Kansas Raises the Maccabean Cry

A lot of what could be harvested with the energy spent in winning and in losing an eight-point box race.

Sinister Suspicion.

We are beginning to be afraid that we shall not like the new Shamrock huff as well as Sir Thomas Lipton does.

Without any inside knowledge we have a hunch that in some way or other the Mediation Court will continue in business till the Chauteau season is over.

Let Us Be Fair!

In justice to the administration which imposed the income tax, it should be said that it is doing everything in its power to get individual incomes in the exempt class.

An Appropriate Theme.

When Mr. Wilson delivers his Fourth of July oration he can confidently predict that nothing like the event which the day commemorates is likely to happen in his administration.

Without Aid or Comfort

We can hardly blame the Ulsterman for not rising, after all. The administration they are going to fight has given them no assistance in their gun-running operations.

Even-Handed Justice!

RAILROADS DEMAND MORE PAY FOR CARRYING THE MAIL. —Headline.

When the postmen do the same thing they lose their jobs.

Encouraging Indication

Bryce's continued effort to limit speech in the Senate proves pretty conclusively that he has given up his long cherished hope of becoming a Senator.

The Old Time Politics

Amos Pinchot, in pronouncing against George Perkins, says "his corporate affiliations make him scarcely suitable for membership in the Progressive party."

THREE cheers for the chaps whose political scraps were conducted with bricks and stones.

I can take small delight in the milkpokes who fight with rhetorical slaps on the wrist;

Ah! the times that I had as an innocent lad, when the town hall was packed to the eaves,

And the orators rose to proclaim that their foes were pirates and bandits and thieves

No drawing-room phrase could get by in those days; that talk was not called from a book.

The speakers would point to their own man as a saint, and his rival a forger and crook.

WHEN a fellow was picked as the man to evict for the good of the glorious party,

We would hand him a slam with a battering ram and a jubilant "Hooray, ho, hearty!"

And he'd either come back with a wallowing whack and hurt all our gang in the street,

Or he'd fall on our flanks from the enemy's ranks and try to arrange our defeat.

When a hatchet was drawn in those days, long ago, we never attempted to bury it,

But loudly applied to the low Other Side such nicknames as Judas Iscariot.

And you never knew when a collection of men who had joined a political rally

Would finish the night in a whale of a fight at the turn of the neighboring alley.

It wasn't the sort of a courteous sport that the Pinchots perhaps would acclaim;

To riot and fight isn't strictly polite, but it DID add a zest to the game!

Bad Business.

Mr. Carnegie must now view that hundred or two million dollars he invested in peace in the light of a wildcat speculation.

Spoken Out of a Full Experience

It is safer to gamble than to write, says Ambassador Pugh. The speaker to refer horticultural to the after-dinner speeches.

Alibi Fully Established.

It is a cliché that the Denver man which attacked a water wagon was not composed of L. W. W.

Too Much! Villa seems to think it is necessary every fifteen or twenty minutes to reiterate that he loves Carrara like a brother.

Clean-Up Week With Gabe.

Gabriel D'Annunzio is now writing about dogs, which are more moral if he can see W. J. Bryan merely by pressing a button.

Some Men Are Never Satisfied.

We are at a loss to understand why the President should go to a circus when he can see W. J. Bryan merely by pressing a button.

A Wide Field.

A member of the President's family says he is deeply interested in improving the condition of the poor. It looks as if he would have abundant opportunity to indulge this hobby during the remaining years of his term.

To Control Slippery Passengers.

While Chicago is regulating the rates for the new aviation line a law should be passed forbidding the talking of the fare by climbing out before the buses have reached their destination.

Tit for Tat.

In the view of Colonel Waterston, Mr. Wilson is trying to make Mr. Bryan look ridiculous. Considering everything, this seems merely a case of poetic justice.

The Conspiracy Grows.

A few thousand more railroad employees have joined the conspiracy against the administration by losing their jobs.

Safety First.

A few more conditions and people will soon be taking to the air as the sure means of crossing the Atlantic.

Asininity—the Younger the Person, the Worse the Failing, Because He Has Just That Much Longer to Live.

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

It has long been said there is no fool like an old fool. But a little observation shows us there is no fool so foolish as the young fool.

The woman fool did not love the man fool; love had in no wise entered into the bargain. She loved his wealth, and she had believed, as fools do the world over, that money brings happiness. But this particular fool possessed a certain refinement of nature, which made her life as a wife of the man fool, and mother of his children, one long martyrdom.

And before she had reached middle life she died, a drug victim. Not one hour of happiness had this beautiful fool experienced. There are many such fools in the land.

There are asylums for the insane, and prisons and reformatories filled with fools who have believed that money is the open door to happiness—money, no matter how obtained—and with fools who imagine drugs or drink will drown sorrow and restore peace of mind.

There is no fool like a young fool. There is no greater menace to the human race than a young fool who worships the money idol.

Gravitation

By EDGAR LUCIEN LARKIN

—IS there any method by which science can measure gravitation in the sense that the flow of water, the current of gas or the flow of the electric current can be measured?—M. B. New Dorp, N. Y.

At present the only methods of measuring the intensity of gravitation exerted on a body by the mass of the earth are by weighing the body, or by measuring either the fall of a body from a certain height, or velocity acquired at the end of a certain time, always on a second, as the unit.

Q.—Gravitation is a wonderful motion can be accounted for by saying it is attracted by the mass of matter in the earth, or pressed upon from the outside, or drawn toward the centre. Then it is not known whether the word flow can be applied to gravitation.

A.—Since none knows what gravitation is, whether an attraction or pressure, no flow will flow or current be applied.

Aatum, if unimpeded, will move toward the gravitational focus of the half of the earth nearest to the point where it falls, always on a second, as the unit.
